UNDER THE DOME

Jeff Babcock, Cheese Specialist

There be Wales! I mean Wales, not whales. A land of dragons and leeks, Wales is an ancient country that has formed part of modern Great Britain. Historic lands with their own distinct culture and language, it was once part of the Roman Empire, with a long coastline and a distinctly mild, wet climate. The topography is hilly and has many highland areas, so animal farming is more suited than crops. Today we introduce Snowdonia Cheese and Chutneys of Wales.

Inspired by the lush greenery of beautiful Snowdonia in North Wales, they began by using fresh ingredients to craft natural, premium Cheddar and Red Leicester cheeses that married an extraordinary depth of flavor with a remarkable creaminess. They introduced delicious, handcrafted chutneys, too, traditionally made with the finest ingredients using recipes unique to Snowdonia Cheese. Their cheese and chutney range is now enjoyed in over 25 countries around the world.

BIG FORK AND CRAFT PORK

Big Fork Brands is a Chicago-based, family-owned company centered on innovation. They work with small family farmers in Iowa who raise heritage hogs outdoors without the use of antibiotics. These 100 Berkshire hogs live the good life with continuous access to the outdoors. They consider the hogs "The 3%," since 97% of the hogs raised in Iowa come from confined feedlots. Feedlots not only stink, but often contaminate the local watershed and it is much more humane to allow hogs access to the outdoors 24 hours a day.

They like to say happy hogs make great tasting sausage, jerky, and meat sticks. Clean label, great tasting products, with a unique twist...that's Big Fork.

CRAFT PORK JERKY

Big Fork knows everyone loves bacon, so they crafted a bacon-inspired pork jerky so you can enjoy the flavor of bacon anytime, anywhere, without guilt—2oz of Big Fork Craft Pork Jerky is only 100 calories, but packs in 11 grams of protein! The jerky is smoky, sweet, savory, and most importantly, craveable.

THE WAGYU OF PORK

Known as the wagyu of pork, they exclusively use heritage pork due to its superior taste and texture. The pork is sliced thin and marinated for 2 days prior to drying and smoking over natural hardwoods. The Craft Pork Jerky is soy sauce free, allowing you to enjoy the meat flavor in three varieties: Original, Maple, and Spicy 3-Pepper.

Just try and find a cleaner jerky on the market. Using 100% Berkshire Hogs that are raised outdoors in the clean Iowa air is a good start. Then they add a little sea salt, and just the right amount of cane sugar for the perfect balance.

Can you handle the heat? They use ground habaneros, cracked black pepper, and crushed red chilies to bring the heat! On a heat scale between 1 and 10 this heat level is just right: a 5. Not too hot so you can enjoy the whole package in one sitting.

DELIGHTFUL LITTLE BITES

Hors d'oeuvres are a peculiar thing — they are either obviously good, or not impressive at all, and the latter is easy to spot. Van Lang has been our vendor of choice when it comes to obviously good hors d'oeuvres. Based just outside of Chicago, each of the over 30 varieties we carry is prepared in their kitchens by hand using high-quality ingredients, like thick-cut bacon, giving them the made-in-house look we love, while providing the consistency in taste we need. The entire line is easy to heat and hold, and a breeze to dress up with garnishes. This month, we'd like to highlight new additions to the assortment, as well as some best sellers we have carried for a while.

PLATING AND PRESENTATION

Plating and presenting hors d'oeuvres on banana leaves can add a touch of elegance and a tropical feel to your presentation. Line a glass or white plate with banana leaves, either covering the surface completely or partially, depending on your preference. Arrange the hors d'oeuvres on top of the banana leaves in a visually appealing manner; then, add color, freshness, and flavor using fresh herbs, edible flowers and sauces.

AN EGG-CELLENT CHOICE!

Founded in 2019 in Pardes Hanna, Israel, Yo! Egg is on a mission to become the largest and most sustainable egg producer in the world, without the use of chickens. Whether you're craving the perfect Eggs Benedict, an egg on your ramen, or bottomless mimosas with a side of sunny-side up eggs for Sunday brunch, Yo! Egg has the texture, flavor, and glorious runny yolks to make it all possible.

Most alternative eggs are in liquid or powder form, but these plant-based offerings are in the form of a poached or sunny side up egg. This gives consumers 'the whole egg experience'.

Some of the perks: 100% vegan, non-GMO, and gluten free; no cholesterol, no saturated fat and lower in sodium and fat than conventional eggs. These cater to the ever-growing plant-based market, without sacrificing flavor or presentation. The yolks are even "popable," leaving the oozing of the yolk for those who want the traditional texture of the yolk. These come frozen and can cook from frozen or thawed in the oven, steamer or microwave (but do not microwave frozen). Another great feature: they are impossible to overcook!

Yo Eggs are primarily made of chickpea and soy proteins. The pack includes Indian black salt—perfect to add a pinch just before service. This salt is essential for cooking as it adds both saltiness and egg flavor to the Yo Eggs.

"Mind-bogglingly delicious!"

"Truly one-of-a-kind!"

"For yolk lovers who want to indulge in a food experience that will delight their palates while easily adding more plants to their diet."

A few suggestions from Yo Egg for these plant-based delights for your menus.

Plant-Based Eggs Benny

Freshly toasted English muffin topped with [plant-based] smoked ham (try Mia Plant-Based Prosciutto), local chives, Yo's plant-based poached eggs, and creamy hollandaise sauce.

Smashed Avo Toast

Smashed avocado on freshly-baked sourdough topped with Yo's plant-based poached egg, chili crisp (try Mr. Bing Chili Crisp), chives, and lime juice.

Miso Ramen

Spicy miso broth with scallions, crispy fried tofu, crunchy bean sprouts, nori and a savory Yo plant-based poached egg.

INDUSTRY TRENDS

Retail & Foodservice

FRESH THYME MARKET PREDICTS 2024 TRENDS

Fresh Thyme Market unveiled Tuesday its inaugural trends report with a focus on Midwest shopping behaviors and brands. The report offers a glimpse into the emerging trends that shoppers can expect to see in each aisle of the store next year, according to the retailer.

The trends are as follows:

1. SEVERAL SUSTAINABILITY SOLUTIONS

Certified upcycled products and certified regenerative organic products are on the rise. Coral Reef safe products, including sun tanning and sun protection lotions, are also gaining ground as consumers look to incorporate sustainability into more areas of their lives.

2. PRIORITIZING ANIMAL WELFARE

While shoppers aren't keeping meat and dairy out of their carts completely, they are becoming more conscious of where these types of products are coming from before they land in the cart. Consumers are purchasing more animal welfare approved products while purchases of non-certified items are declining.

Fra'Mani firmly believes in sourcing the highest-quality ingredients from family farms committed to land, animals, people and a better food system for all. Their products boast the Certified Humane® certification.

Culver Duck's ducks are humanely raised through industry-leading practices, and the result is a lean and delicious product for the home cook and leading chef alike. Their products are American Humane Certified™.

3. CLOSE TO HOME: LOCAL & DIVERSE BRANDS

The grocer is committed to and carries Midwest-founded brands as well as brands with underrepresented founders to ensure diversity in its offerings and foster an inclusive shopping experience.

A few examples of this at European Imports includes:

- Chicago-based Big Fork Brands and Salumi Chicago
- Women— and Asian-Pacific-Owned Star Anise

4. BEAUTY BLOOM

The retailer is sourcing beauty products that are focused on innovation and are plastic-free. This is in response to consumers seeking out more natural and organic products.

5. PROTEIN IN MOTION

Shoppers are considering new alternative protein sources to support their fitness routine. Plant-based protein powders like pea protein and beet protein have become popular among consumers looking for plant-based products.

6. THE TAKEOVER OF TIKTOK AND SOCIAL MEDIA TRENDS

TikTok and Instagram have the power to influence the specific products that consumers buy. When recipes trend on social media, their ingredients also trend in-store.

7. ALLERGY CONSCIOUS CHOICES

Earlier this year, sesame became the ninth major allergen that must be disclosed on packaging of food. Consumers are showing a growing preference for products that are free of the top nine major allergens.

8. FUNCTIONAL BEVERAGES

Beverages with added benefits are gaining ground. Whether immunity boosting, mood boosting, or better-for-you ingredients, consumers are craving drinks that taste good and help them feel good, according to the retailer. The grocer carries Recess and Poppi brands and recently added De Soi to its product offerings.

9. MUSHROOM MANIA

While the common varieties of mushrooms have remained popular amongst shoppers, consumers are also seeking out exotic and gourmet mushroom varieties in new forms.

10. CRAB-TIVATING THE NATION

Crab purchases are on the rise because of its versatile culinary appeal, all while remaining on the low end of cost compared to other seafood options.

Capitalize on this trend and the desire for more sustainability focused products and try these White Toque Plant-Based Mini Crab Cakes, filled with lemongrass and kelp surrounded by a crisp coating.
