EUROPEAN — IMPORTS — a Sysco company

In celebration of Earth Day in April, we're spotlighting some of the brands and products that are making a difference by practicing sustainability. "Sustainable" refers to practices and actions that can be maintained over the long term without depleting natural resources, causing harm to the environment, or compromising the well-being of present and future generations. While there are a plethora of ways companies can practice sustainability, below are some of the key certifications some of the brands we offer boast.

Animal Welfare Approved requires animals to be able to behave naturally and be in a state of physical and psychological well-being, requiring the animals are raised on range or pasture. Similarly, Certified Humane requires that meat and dairy products are raised humanely without the use of growth hormones or non-therapeutic antibiotics.

North Country Smokehouse sources all natural, Certified Humane® and Organic pork from du-Breton, a Canadian based producer leading both North America and Canada in the supply of humanely raised, sustainable meat.

Fair Trade Certified is mainly used to ensure farmers and farm workers in developing nations receive a fair price for their product; have direct trade relations with buyers and access to credit; and encourage sustainable farming methods, without the use of harmful pesticides and forced child labor.

One Fair Trade Certified (plus USDA Organic, Certified B Corp, Non-GMO, and Plant-Based) brand is Tcho. Tcho Source is their own program centered around sustainable practices — read all about their efforts on Page 6.

Upcycling food is the practice of repurposing food (by-products or surplus) that would otherwise go to waste into new food products. Spare Tonic and Uglies Potato Chips are both perfect cases of upcycling, where perfectly good by-product and product with slight imperfections are being crafted into something great. Read more about these lines on Page 8.

The use of renewable energy to power operations is another way some of our producers strive to be more sustainable. A couple of our exemplary cheese suppliers are Point Reyes Farmstead Cheese Co. (more on page 2) and Fiscalini Farmstead who uses a methane digester to convert traditional waste products to produce enough energy to power their facility— plus 300 neighboring homes!

Check out the rest of the April Newsletter to discover more about these sustainable suppliers and more!

SUSTAINABLE FUTURE

Point Reyes Farmstead Cheese has been a partner with European Imports since nearly the time they started making cheese, over twenty years ago. I've been fortunate to visit their farm on several occasions and I'm always in awe of what they have accomplished and continue to build upon. What they do, and how they do it, is very compelling:

"Because the happiness of our cows depends on healthy diets and land stewardship, sustainability is placed above all else. We harvest methane-powered renewable energy. Water is conserved through innovative reuse and recycling programs and we manage our nutrient-rich pastures with careful attention to erosion control. To reduce greenhouse gas emissions we use farming practices that maximize carbon sequestration. To ensure cow comfort we've recently installed state-of-the-art robotic technology in our two dairy parlors. The farm has sustained our family for going on four generations. So, we feel honored, and obliged, to respect it in every way possible. Not only as a legacy to pass along to our children and their children, but as an example for farming that promotes healthy food and a healthy environment for everyone."

Point Reyes' origin was in crafting blue cheese, starting with their aptly named Original Blue. When introduced to the Bay Area in 2000, it was the only classic style blue cheese in California. They next created their natural rind blue, Bay Blue, followed by Toma, a lovely cheese with great versatility.

Today, Original Blue continues to be made on the farm in Point Reyes, exclusively from the milk of their own Holsteins, while their pasteurized cheeses, including Bay Blue and Toma, are handcrafted in Petaluma, where they source milk from dairies who share in their sustainable farming philosophies and match their highest standards for milk quality.

We continue to expand with Point Reyes and bring you the best their farm has to offer. Below is our current assortment available from Point Reyes.

Original Blue: The addictive flavor is bold with hints of sweet milk and a peppery finish. Rindless, all-natural.

SURPRISINGLY SUSTAINABLE

This month, we are focusing on sustainability, and I'd like to spotlight a possibly unexpected partner of ours who deserves recognition for how they operate. European Imports is proud to partner with New York's LaBelle Farms. In the era of mass produced and watered down everything, LaBelle still practices responsible animal husbandry, land stewardship, and other quality controls that makes their product stand out from the crowd.

Pastrami Rubbed Duck Breast—LaBelle's house blended pastrami rub sings with spice and smoke on these thick and intensely flavored breasts. Delicious at room temp, warm slices gently to release incredible nuance and depth of flavor.

LaBelle raises their ducks and chickens in large, cage-free coops which allow them to roam, feed, and socialize when they want. Because LaBelle is committed to using feed free of animal by-products, antibiotics or growth hormones, in 2009 their first crop of feed corn was planted. Responsible crop rotation is practiced, and the fields are fertilized with their own nutrient-rich manure from their coops.

All the birds are air chilled instead of water-cooled. This process concentrates, rather than dilutes, their flavor; plus, it reduces waste water flow. The birds are all harvested through Zabaha and are all Halal-certified. Every bit of the duck and chicken is used: the breasts, legs, feet and even necks are utilized; plus, the fats are rendered into golden, flavor-packed clarity for sautéing and confit.

We have three new items from LaBelle Farms at European Imports:

Orvia Duck Breast — with French genetics, this duck is a Muscovy cross. The slower growing ducks have less fat and thinner skin which allows the skin to crisp up much more quickly and reliably, while still maintaining a robust duck flavor. Started in a cold cast iron skillet skin side down, these beauties will be fully rendered, crispy, and rich when you flip the still-bubbling skin to finish quickly to a rosy medium on the flesh side.

Clarified Chicken Fat — Made from the air chilled birds raised on their farms, this clarified golden schmaltz is perfect for sautéing vegetables or greens, roasting potatoes, or infusing with spices as the "aromatic oil" used to finish a bowl of Chicken Taipan Ramen.

REFRESHING SIPS WITH SUSTAINABLE PRACTICES

Let's raise a glass to sustainability and two beloved beverage brands, Lorina and Harney & Sons. These two brands both offer a line of USDA Organic certified beverages, allowing you to indulge in delightful drinks while supporting companies that prioritize sustainability every step of the way.

Lorina Artisanal Lemonade has long been synonymous with zesty, flavorful refreshments. But did you know they're also passionate about sustainability? From their choice of ingredients to their packaging, Lorina is committed to reducing its environmental footprint.

Eco-Friendly Ingredients: Lorina sources its lemons and other ingredients from sustainable farms, supporting agricultural practices that prioritize the health of the land and communities. All of their lemonades are USDA Organic.

Recyclable Packaging: Their iconic glass bottles are not only charming but also fully recyclable. By choosing glass over plastic, Lorina reduces plastic waste and encourages a circular economy.

Energy Efficiency: Lorina continuously seeks ways to minimize energy consumption in its production processes, further reducing its carbon footprint.

Harney & Sons brings the centuries-old tradition of tea craftsmanship into a convenient, ready-to-drink format. But their commitment to sustainability is as modern as it gets.

Responsibly Sourced Tea Leaves: Harney & Sons works closely with tea growers who prioritize sustainable farming methods, ensuring that their teas are not only delicious but also environmentally friendly.

BPA-Free Bottles: Their bottles are BPA-free and recyclable, aligning with their mission to provide high-quality beverages without compromising on environmental responsibility.

Support for Conservation: Harney & Sons actively supports conservation efforts aimed at protecting the ecosystems and communities where their tea is grown, fostering a healthier planet for generations to come.

FARM TO TABLE FRESHNESS

Crop's benefits from direct relationships with farmers all over the world: it is a never-ending quest to grow the very best. They build longstanding, loyal partnerships with local growers who know their native terroirs. At the peak of ripeness, they harvest, clean, and flash freeze the vegetables. Crop's works to freeze their products within a few hours after they arrive from the fields to preserve color, texture, nutritional value, and taste, so their products have a long shelf life and can be enjoyed year-round. Every step of the 'farm to table' journey is monitored, and they apply the highest standards in quality assurance to guarantee traceability, ingredient quality, and food safety.

Crop's believes in sustainable entrepreneurship and invests in projects that preserve nature and diversity, reduce pesticide usage and waste, reuse water, generate biogas fertilizer for their fields, and create renewable energy. Crop's is also committed to respecting the rights of their workforce and participates in ethical and labor social responsibility programs. In their Belgium kitchen, a team of chefs and nutritionists use the premium, non-GMO ingredients to create a global menu of authentic dishes that capture local flavors. Several of Crop's side dishes are enrobed with sauce and seasoning before being instantly quick frozen. This unique coating technology guarantees an even distribution of the sauce so you can prepare the portions you need, reducing leftovers that go to waste. Bringing goodness to the table is at the heart of what they do. You can count on Crop's to grow and freeze the finest ingredients and sides to create delicious and nutritious food that inspires.

A BETTER WORLD THROUGH CHOCOLATE

TCHO was born nearly 15 years ago out of a shared obsession to reimagine the world of chocolate from the ground up. Curiosity ruled every move as they set out to rethink every step of the chocolate making process and bring tools and resources directly to their farmer partners, which often meant innovating through technology. When they discovered that most cacao farmers have never even tasted chocolate made from their beans, they built ten TCHO Flavor Labs around the world where they work alongside local farmers and agronomists to improve every aspect from seed-to-bean-to-bar while helping communities and the environment along the way. TCHO guarantees 100% traceability of their cacao. That's why TCHO is Chocolate.

A BETTER WORLD THROUGH CHOCOLATE

As a Certified B Corporation, TCHO leans on the founding value of curiosity to find new ways to use their business to better the world through chocolate. They are now not only a certified B Corp, but also 100% Plant-Based, Organic, Fair Trade, and Earth Kosher certified! Their commitment to sustainable growth, environmental stewardship, and making decisions that result in better conditions for farmers, employees, customers and communities has led them to recently transition to a 100% animal-free factory. Their innovative chocolate is now animal free from dark to the "must-try" plant-based milk chocolate.

FIVE LEADING TRENDS FROM THE WINTER FANCY FOOD SHOW

Plant-based variety, the citrus flavor yuzu and upcycled were among the key trends identified by a panel of “trendspotters” assembled by the Specialty Food Association to review innovation exhibited at the Winter Fancy Food Show, held Jan. 21-23 in Las Vegas.

“The Winter Fancy Food Show gave participants an advance look at the year ahead in specialty foods,” said Bill Lynch, president of the Specialty Food Association, the organizer of the show. “Thanks to our trendspotters, as well as many other experts and influencers who joined us in Las Vegas, our show provides crucial insights and forecasting at the start of the food industry’s annual cycle.”

A wide variety of plant-based prepared foods featuring international flavors were on display at the show. Specific products called out by the trendspotter panel included Aki Foods’ plant-based pork tonkotsu, Jayone Foods’ plant-based spicy bulgogi and a black truffle koji pate from Prime Roots and Three Little Pigs.

The panel also said the Japanese citrus fruit flavor yuzu was “everywhere” at the show.

“Everyone loves lemon and citrus,” said Clara Park, a chef who participated in the trendspotter panel. “But how you make it new again is with the Japanese citrus, yuzu.” Yuzu was used to flavor beverages, frozen novelties and condiments, notably kosho, a Japanese seasoning.

The upcycling trend also appeared to accelerate at the show as more companies showcased products featuring ingredients sourced from byproducts and side streams.

European Imports is proud to offer Uglies Kettle Chips, crafted from upcycled potatoes with slight imperfections, and Spare Tonic, produced using the whey byproduct from the production of yogurt. Read more about these perfectly good potatoes and functional beverages on Page 8!

Jonathan Deutsch, a professor with and director of the Drexel Food Lab at Drexel University and a member of the panel, said the focus on upcycled products is only the beginning.

“For upcycled brands, the packaging will ideally match the sustainability-focus of the product,” he said. “As sustainable packaging gets more sophisticated and affordable, brands can align their better-for-the planet mission beyond the product to include the packaging.”

Two additional trends highlighted by the panel included fruits as snacks and new takes on classics. As more people learn about ultraprocessed foods, there is interest in innovative less processed products. Applications at the Winter Fancy Food show that caught the panel’s attention included candied citrus peels, guava butter and frozen grapes.

Product applications that fell under the new takes on classics trend included Acme Smoked Fish’s Lox in a Box, Tempesta Artisan Salumi’s wagyu pastrami and Unha Asian Snack Box’s spicy carbonara tteokbokki.

UPCYCLED AND DELICIOUS

Upcycling food is based on the philosophy of using all of what you have. Upcycling elevates food to its best uses, in the end reducing waste and creating high-quality foods. The official definition: Upcycled foods use ingredients that otherwise would not have gone to human consumption, are procured and produced using verifiable supply chains, and have a positive impact on the environment.

THE SPARE FOOD CO.

But what makes Uglies even more irresistible? Pairing them with Spare Tonic. Crafted with sustainability in mind, Spare Tonic utilizes upcycled whey from the production of Greek yogurt, plus surplus fruits and herbs to create refreshing and unique flavors that are as good for the planet as they are for your taste buds. Each sip of Spare Tonic is a celebration of resourcefulness and creativity, turning surplus ingredients into something truly delightful.

Made with just four ingredients—upcycled whey, honey, fruit and spice — and available in four delicious flavors.

Uglies Kettle Chips have been making waves with their deliciously imperfect potato chips. These chips, made from rescued 'ugly' potatoes that would otherwise go to waste, offer a crunchy and flavorful snacking experience unlike any other.
