A GOLDMINE OF CHEESE

Shaft's Cheese was discovered by accident over 20 years ago. Some "past date" blue was offered to the founder, John Gibson Sr., to try as someone active in the cheese industry. He loved it and immediately got to work crafting his recipe. A mineshaft in the foothills of California was a perfect aging environment...MineSHAFT....get it?

We invite you to indulge in a little bit of Shaft's - it will be a discovery you won't forget!

Original Mineshaft used for aging

CHEF & MASTER SALUMIERE

Greg Laketek quit his day job and booked a one-way ticket to Parma, Italy, the home of Prosciutto, seeking to train under the best salumiere in the world. By chance, he was able to directly learn the ins and outs of the protected secrets of Italian Salumi. Utilizing superior quality spices, meats and curing methods rooted in the old world, Salumi Chicago uniquely brings another level of Italian quality meats to the US.

"Meat is more than just a food to us. It's an art." - (Salumi Chicago)

FOLLOWING HIS PASSION

Greg Laketek spent summers with family in Italy. His earliest memories are of his grandfather taking him to friends' farms to eat cheese, salumi, bread, and wine. When Laketek took a brief off-ramp into the world of corporate consulting as an adult, it was just a technicality, a side-ways route to a deeper culinary calling.

Back in the States, Laketek graduated from University of Kansas, using his business degree to start a consulting company. Warm Italian summer days still glowing in his heart, a restlessness kicked in, and Laketek found his daily office life less and less fulfilling. Laketek enrolled in culinary school, still unsure what his next step would be. It was only when he and a friend began discussing the lack of quality charcuterie in Chicago that the light bulb finally went off and Salumi Chicago was conceived.

STUFFED WITH THE GOOD STUFF!

In 1926 Candido Miro founded Aceitunas Serpis and opened a production plant at La Sardina street in Alcoy, Spain. As a visionary entrepreneur, he recognized the opportunity to create a unique product by combining the flavors of olives with various stuffing ingredients. He embarked on a journey to develop innovative recipes and perfect the art of stuffing olives, ultimately giving birth to the range of stuffed olives that bear his name.

Today, Candido Miro continues to uphold its legacy as a pioneer in the field of stuffed olives. With a passion for excellence and a dedication to preserving the authentic flavors of Spain, Candido Miro remains a symbol of quality and craftsmanship in the world of stuffed olives.

FROM TEXTILES TO OLIVES

Candido Miro was in the textile business before founding Serpis. So why would someone sell all their machinery and leave a profitable business to venture into one that a market didn't even exist for yet? Because of passion for combining olives with complimenting foods and a belief in the demand and desire for it.

He started off stuffing olives with anchovies, and as the company grew and passed through its four generations of leadership, they have adjusted for international tastes and with innovative combinations. In 2000, they obtained a worldwide license to use the Tabasco name in their products and continue to stuff olives with unique gourmet foods. European Imports is proud to offer a select line of these products and bring them to you.

Founded in 1911 as a cocoa pressing plant on the banks of the Zaan River in the Netherlands, deZaan has spent more than a century setting the standards for cocoa ingredient excellence. They bring precision and passion to every part of the cocoa process by selecting only the finest cocoa beans, harnessing proprietary processing techniques, and by utilizing their long-held knowledge to offer a complete set of cocoa ingredients to customers.

At the heart of deZaan's approach is a desire to share the vast potential of cocoa with the world. Their cocoa powders are renowned for their variety and quality, with colors that range from red to brown and black, across low and high-fat contents and natural and dutched variations. Together, their line of cocoa powders represent the full range of flavors, colors and textures that cocoa has to offer.

COCOA INGREDIENTS FOR PROFESSIONALS

Since 1911, deZaan has always ensured the uniquely delicious flavor elements of the cocoa bean are retained, constantly inspiring new creativity in the culinary industry with their network of partner Pastry Chefs.

A COLOR FOR EVERY RECIPE

deZaan offers Natural and Dutched cocoa powders. The "Dutching" process involves the alkalization of the cocoa nibs resulting in powders with less bitterness and intense colors. Dutched cocoa powders have a higher pH than natural (non-dutched) cocoa powders and are darker and more chocolatey in flavor. The different pH levels make them each individually more suited to certain dessert or beverage applications.

THEIR VERSATILE LINE OF COCOA

With a nutty flavor and salty notes, this bitter, intense, dutched (alkalized) cocoa powder is for lovers of decadent dark chocolate.

It is best used in biscuits, snacks, and sauces.

GIADA DE LAURENTIIS SHARES HIGH-IMPACT FOOD TRENDS AT THE SUMMER FANCY FOOD SHOW

Giada De Laurentiis, chef, TV personality, author of ten cookbooks, and founder of Giadzy, spoke about emerging trends that are shaping the specialty food industry, and facilitating the success of her brand, during her keynote presentation at the Summer Fancy Food Show, Monday.

Giadzy, De Laurentiis' ecommerce brand, features Italian pantry products and lifestyle content including recipes and travel guides.

The pandemic led to many of the trends that she shared in the session, citing the mass change in consumer sentiments that allowed her brand to fill a gap in the market.

"We realized that people couldn't go to their local, Italian market, or they couldn't go to their local restaurant, or they couldn't travel," she said. "Covid really disrupted the market and had a lot more people looking for [products] online in a way they hadn't before. It accelerated something that I think was happening anyway." This shift to consumers becoming more comfortable with online shopping helped her business take off.

She highlighted the following practices paramount to the industry, which she leveraged in her business:

1. Demand for at-home culinary experiences,
2. Product sourcing and storytelling,
3. Clean ingredients and authenticity,
4. The total package—its aesthetics and experience.

The at-home culinary experiences sought to replace the diverse food landscape that consumers were accustomed to before the pandemic. This led De Laurentiis to work with local producers that were family friends in Italy, and craft kits around a theme to share traditional Italian flavors at a time when it was difficult for people to experience it otherwise.

She recommends the use of themes in promoting products, or groups of products. "It's easier for people to harness what you are trying to do if there is a theme around it," she said.

Along with bundling products into kits, she shares information about product sourcing, sometimes including video profiles from producers to help communicate the authenticity of the ingredients.

"Because viewers can't smell or taste, most of the interest has to come to aesthetics and the story you tell about the food," she explained. By giving insight into these practices, she helps build trust with the consumer, which in turn gives the consumer the confidence that the product is authentic and worthy of purchase.

For the success of a product on today's shelf, or in an ecommerce marketplace, De Laurentiis advised that the aesthetics and packaging methods are crucial. People today are interested in sustainability and reusability in packaging, and the packaging must be eye-catching and share information about the company. For Giadzy, the brand seeks to highlight the Italian style, culture, and lifestyle. She shared that when she thinks about the creation of a package, she strives to create things that people can keep on their counters and something that is nice enough for people to feel they want to keep, either for storage or regifting purposes.

"People eat with their eyes first. It has to look a certain way in order to bring people in," shared De Laurentiis.

De Laurentiis also announced the debut of Giadzy's private-label pasta. With this brand, she sought to make hard-to-find pasta shapes more accessible, she said.
