UNDER THE DOME by Marcia Suchy

"BRAVO" FOR AMERICAN ARTISAN CHEESES

In the world of fine cheese, there are some details in production that help to put the cheeses in the running for greatness. Using raw milk from the cheesemakers own herd gives the cheese a head start. Though, like a fine wine from a new crop of estate grown grapes there is no guarantee of quality, but the producers know that having maximum control in their own hands gives them their best shot at creating cheese with surpassing flavor. Bill and Pat Boersma are the artisans of Bravo Farms in Visalia, California. Their artwork is a direct result of converting the raw milk of farmstead animals into incredible cheddar or Edam-style cheeses. Though the Boersmas took some university courses, most of their experience and mastering of the skills they have acquired came from hours of dairy work and hands-on self-teaching.

Two Bravo Farms cheeses are now available through European Imports Ltd.

BRAVO FARMS SILVER MOUNTAIN

Silver Mountain is a lovely 'special reserve' style cheddar that reflects the quality of the raw milk and the artistry of the hands-on skills of Bill and Pat. Silver Mountain, shadowed by a near-by 9000 foot high mountain of the same name, is a cloth-bound cheese aged for 9 months. The rustic exterior of the tall wheel profiles a masterful example of workmanship.

The tight-knit texture and the pale yellow color are reminiscent of cheddar. The cheddar cultures and aging of the cheese in cool cellar conditions adds to the familiar flavor. The flavor carries over from the fullness of the raw milk, full, meaty and tenderly sharp. This is a classic example of Farmstead Cheese at its best.

BRAVO FARMS TULARE CANNONBALL

When the first Tulare Cannonballs shot from the traditional Edam molds, the sound was not immediately heard around the American Artisan world. The appreciation for these lovely natural rind-cured mounds has grown with the sophistication of America's love for cheese and their support of the Artisans that make them. Tulare Cannonballs are released from the curing room between three and six months. The modest flavor begins with a balance of milky creaminess and an unmistakable smooth hint of Edam-style nuttiness. The dense texture and characteristic flavor intensifies with age peaking to perfection at about nine months. The finishing touch to giving the Cannonballs their namesake appearance is a smooth black coating that adds to the dramatic eye-appeal.

400027 Bravo Tulare Cannonball 2/3.5 lb.

Both cheeses are priced under $7.50 per pound.

Introducing Gnocchetti

New to the Cucina Viva line of fine Italian products are Gnocchetti. Gnocchetti are a mini version of Cucina Viva gnocchi with a more “delicate” presentation. Gnocchi are in the simplest sense dumplings. In Italy they are invariably cooked quickly and served simply. They are robust, yet delicate - firm, yet light; they have no place for intricate, overworked and complex sauces and dressings.

Cucina Viva Gnocchetti is made with a potato - base with the addition of flour. Because they are packaged in a vacuum sealed bag, these mini potato dumplings do not require refrigeration. Made in Italy, now you can finally experience what true Italian Gnocchi tastes like in a mini version. Lightly seasoned and salted, they have a wonderful flavor and texture. Easy to prepare, simply drop them into a pot of boiling water and stir occasionally. Cook for 2 minutes or until they float, then lift them out of the water with a skimmer (do not use a colander) drain, and top with sauce and grated cheese serve immediately.

803049 Gnocchetti 12/17.5 oz

Cucina Viva Italian Gnocchi are one inch elongated dumplings made with mashed potatoes. They are vacuum packed to preserve freshness and they are shelf stable. They come packed in a 12 unit convenient “straight” display case.

As Gnocchi continues to appear on menus in upscale restaurants more and more frequently Cucina Viva offers a delicious economical alternative for home chefs. Gnocchi are generally served as a side dish to a meat course but can be a satisfying main dish just as well. Try serving them with fresh sage and butter, with sauteed spinach, pine nuts, and olive oil or tossed with vodka sauce. They are also delicious deep-fried and served with a dipping sauce.

Unique and tasty imported Italian Gnocchi selections from Cucina Viva that just beg to be enjoyed:

Wild & Unique Foods by Tim Doyle

European Imports Ltd. now offers a line of Scottish smoked salmon from Scotland using only Scottish fish. St James Smokehouse is one of Scotland's few remaining independent, family owned traditional smokehouses. They are driven by a dedicated team of local craftsmen with youth and passion, alongside talent and experience.

They are nestled on the banks of the River Cree in the heart of the small Scottish Lowland Village. This beautiful location is the key to procuring the freshest and finest quality salmon from the nearby clear, fast flowing waters of Western Scotland.

From this fresh water, this premium quality salmon is personally hand picked and then carefully filleted by their skilled artisans utilizing old world techniques. Within only a few hours of harvest, each side of salmon is individually dry cured by hand using their choice blend of rich golden demerara sugar and natural sea salt.

St. James only uses the oak barrels from the nearby whisky distillery of Bladnoch. Their premium quality Scottish salmon is smoked for 24 hours over slowly smoldering whiskey oak chips to create its distinctive flavor. Each fillet is then fully trimmed again by hand to remove the skin and dark meat, leaving only the prime cut of smoked salmon. This prime cut is then thinly sliced and vacuum sealed to capture that fresh out of the smoker taste.

St. James makes all of our orders in small batches and then sends them directly to us to ensure quality and consistency. All of their products are guaranteed to be made with only natural, pure and fresh ingredients. They also strictly forbid the use of any artificial preservatives, flavors or additives. This product is also kosher certified by the London Beth Din. So for anyone who wants to taste Scotland's finest this is a real treat.

Starting with the basics, breads, Puratos has your needs covered. They offer a complete line of mixes and bases as well as improvers, flavors and conditioners. The mixes require only the addition of water and yeast; bases on the other hand need water, yeast and your own flour. Improvers and conditioners are products used in helping the dough's workability, and expediting production. These products also have the design for better life and textures, with added volume.

The Puratos line of flavors and sours we carry will add unique taste and aromas to your bread products. Nowadays there's no reason to have the worries of a starter or sour and the possibility of not maintaining it, which is an absolute necessity.

The Puratos line offers quite a variety of breads of which something should strike your fancy, either as a new idea or just to try another version of what you're making now. From a simple baguette to a full flavored European style seven grain bread.
